In any recording studio environment there can be exposure to loud noise levels. Please note that River Music Experience (RME) will make efforts to supply earplugs for use during live recording sessions, but it is ultimately the responsibility of each student and/or participant to protect his/her own hearing. OSHA regulations for maximum sound exposure levels will be posted in the class, and a decimeter (device to measure loudness in dB) will be used to monitor sound levels in the studio. All students will receive audio safety training, including training in the use of a decimeter.

The RME will not be held responsible for hearing loss and, by signing this waiver, the student and/or participant releases River Music Experience (RME) from any insurance liability or responsibility for injuries or loss of hearing. This form must be signed and returned before any student and/or participant will be allowed to take part in any live recording sessions and/or classes.

Above terms are fully understood, and the student and/or participant, parent and/or legal guardian hereby agrees not to hold River Music Experience (RME) responsible or liable for any injuries, damages, or hearing loss suffered while participating in recording sessions and classes at the RME studio and venue:
